

Shoalhaven Entertainment Centre Postponed Show Dates Announced

Australian and international acts forced by COVID-19 restrictions to postpone their 2020 shows are going back on sale for a bumper year of shows at Shoalhaven Entertainment Centre in 2021.

Bluey's Big Play, and Mark Vincent's A Tribute to Mario Lanza are among the most popular of the seven shows now selling.

Top Aussie band The Whitlams is also popular with music lovers who have been gig-deprived over the last few months. Support acts includes Ben Lee.

Although the Centre's theatres are temporarily closed, their foyer and café doors have been open throughout the restrictions.

Their on-site Encore Café & Bar continued providing takeaway options and they're now offering a dine-in service Monday to Friday from 8am-3pm with fresh house made daily specials.

Their Box Office has continued to operate online and by phone but following the easing of restrictions their in-person service is back. They've loved seeing their patrons again, who are excited to buy tickets to future performances.

Of course, the health of their staff and visitors is of the utmost importance, and they have taken the appropriate measures to ensure a safe environment, adhering to the strict four-square metre capacity per venue space. They are ensuring that all visitors know what to expect when they enter the venue, and details can be found on page four of this release.

They are also officially registered as a COVID Safe business.

Larger audiences are still not permitted due to public gathering restrictions, so unfortunately the theatre stages remain dark, but the ghost light is still blazing!

A lot of 2020 shows were postponed due to COVID-19 public healthy orders, and their events' team has been working with producers to lock in new dates.

The venue Manager Karen Patterson said:

"These past few months have been crippling for the entire arts industry, and with each step to ease restrictions we're hopeful for a full return in the near future of shows being performed on our world-class stages."

"We've especially missed seeing our loyal patrons at the Centre, and we can't wait to celebrate the full reopening of our theatre spaces with our community."

It is with great anticipation that they can reveal that the following postponed shows are back on sale.
